that if he is trusted he will keep faith, and that there is a sense of honor even in the lowest of human beings which can be appealed to successfully. The recent voluntary return to Sing Sing of an escaped convict, under the spur of conscience and the prompting of his fellows in the underworld in which he sought refuge, is one signal proof of the practical correctness of Mr. Osborne's theory and practice.

The jubilation at Sing Sing was more than a personal and triumphant homecoming for Mr. Osborne; it was a demonstration of the essential humanity that is not extinguished or blunted by a prison sentence. It was a recognition of which any official might be proud, but the satisfaction will not be confined to Mr. Osborne's waris at Sing Sing. It marks a great step forward toward the overthrow of inhuman traditions in the treatment of those against whom society is forced to protect itself. And, more than that, it signals the utter defeat of the sinister forces which for selfish and criminal purposes sought to defeat Mr. Osborne's work and faster again upon Sing Sing the regime of cruelty and graft which had made it notorious among American penal institutions, a breeding place for crime, over whose portals might well have been inscribed those words which Dante found on his approach to the Inferno: "All hope abandon, ye who enter here!" What Mr. Osborne has done has been to bring back hope to the convicts, to appeal to their better natures, to stimulate the flickering traces of honor which crime has not been able wholly to blot out. For such a man, what better title than "doctor of humanity?" — Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Horses Exceed Autos in Value.

William D. Hunt, Brookline, Mass., treasurer of the Massachusetts Protective association for horses, recently said that the value of the horses and mules in the United States is three times as great as the value of automobiles.

"If all the horses died tomorrow we should all probably starve to death," said Mr. Hunt. "We depend upon the horse for what we eat and for what we wear."

His statistics showed that as reported by the department of agriculture there were on January 1, 1916, 21,166,000 horses on farms, 4,565,000 mules and 3,182,700 horses in the cities, a total of 28,913,700. In 1890, in round numbers, there were 11,000,000 horses on farms in the United States and in 1900 there were 18,000,000. The value of the horses and mules in the country is $3,022,292,000. Mr. Hunt said that there are 1,800,000 automobiles in the country and their value is $1,260,000,000.

HILLQUITT REPRESENTS AMERICAN SOCIALISTS AT HAGUE CONFERENCE

MORRIS HILLQUITT

Socialists the world over continue their endeavors to unite in behalf of peace, although their course in all the warring countries is attended with difficulties, since many of the most ardent of "internationalists," before the war, are now just as earnest advocates of nationalism. On July 31 an international meeting of socialists working for peace will be held in The Hague. The American delegate to the conference is Morris Hillquitt, the well known New York writer and orator.

PARENTS FIGHT FOR CHILD.

Texas Woman Stages Scene on Train Near Shawnee.

Shawnee, Okla., July 27.—Mrs. John Sheehan, of El Paso, Texas, today made a desperate attempt while aboard a Rock Island train near here, to forcibly take her son, Johnnie Sheehan, 8 years old, from his father. Sheehan grappled with his wife, however, and prevented her jumping with the boy from the rapidly moving train. Mrs. Sheehan left the train here and started legal proceedings in an effort to recover custody of the boy.

Sheehan, who has been separated from his wife for some time, was not aware of her presence on the train until she appeared suddenly in the aisle near his seat, grabbed up the youngster and hurried to the rear vestibule of the car, ostensibly with the intention of jumping off.

IT DOESN'T HURT TO BE HIT BY LIGHTNING

Atlanta, Ga., July 27.—It doesn't hurt at all to be struck by lightning. The pain comes after the victim regains consciousness.

F. R. Askew, railroad conductor of White Plains, Ga., was struck by lightning and realized it only when he found himself on the floor, the soles torn from his shoes, and his body bruised and bleeding.

"I thought someone had slipped up behind me while I was reading," Askew says. "It had taken two hours for me to realize what had happened."

"Did you ever drop off to sleep and remember the exact moment you lost consciousness? That's how it feels to be struck by lightning."
